Post Lady Sue Leaving Collection

Sad news that as a result of restructuring by Royal Mail, Sue our Chester Green post lady will be transferring from her delivery round to a driving job in a few weeks time.

Many people in Chester Green will miss Sue, who has not only been a brilliant and reliable post lady but a good friend.

To say thank you to Sue, we are organizing a leaving collection.

If you would like to contribute a small donation, you can do so at the following addresses. (If you supply a contact number we can let you know details of the presentation)

Flood Defence Exploratory Digging

(Extract from Derby Telegraph August 23rd)

On Tuesday August 27th, the Environment Agency will start work on the six-week programme of exploratory digging at the sites of the first planned flood defences, to help the Our City Our River project team design the foundations for Derby's defences. The condition of the ground will be assessed, from the fields north of Alfreton Road Industrial Estate down to the Council House. It will be looked at by drilling and digging holes up to 10 metres deep. Once the ground material has been analysed, the holes will be refilled and the land reinstated.

Local Schools

Issues of choice and sibling places are a concern for some local families in Chester Green. If you feel it might be beneficial to discuss these concerns with a view to trying to progress solutions please contact the Residents Association and we will arrange a meeting. To contact the Little Chester Residents Association please see our web-site: <http://www.littlechester.org.uk/>

Free Bus To School for Granny

A 106-year-old Norwegian woman received an offer from local authorities for free bus rides to the school she is supposed to attend in autumn. Ingeborg Thuen, born in 1897 when the Klondyke gold rush was going strong, actually started school just before she turned six in 1903. Computers in the Os township near Bergen, Norway, read the '97 of her birth year as 1997, meaning she would be starting the infant school the next autumn.

She welcomed the free ride, saying that the last time she started school, she had to walk for an hour every morning. The letter from the township also encouraged Ingeborg's parents to list the children she would like to have in her class. 'But since I can already read, maybe I should skip a couple of grades,' she suggested!

Anti-Social Behaviour

Sadly there have been quite a few reports of anti-social behaviour in the area in recent weeks causing some nuisance and distress.

If you do witness any anti-social behaviour please do consider reporting it through the 101 police number. This means that the incident will be logged by the police and can be dealt with by the local police or community support officer.

Police non-emergency number : 101
